

Leadership Skills

“Leadership and learning are indispensable to one another.”

John F. Kennedy

What's different about this programme?

Leadership is a unique blend of attributes in every individual, and so we have created this programme to be unique for each attendee. Participants identify the attributes which they most need to develop. With a maximum of 10 participants, you will benefit from personal attention throughout.

Your tutor is Madeleine Allen who has over 20 years experience in leadership roles. She has coached Board members and senior managers through their business challenges at both the individual and corporate level, and brings a refreshing blend of theory with real-world experience.

The benefits

- A tailored programme which will make an immediate positive impact on your leadership skills
- Individual attention throughout the programme
- A personalised analysis of your own leadership style
- Case studies taken from your own workplace giving you real take-away ideas to put into practice
- Modules spread over time to allow you to practise skills between sessions
- Lots of bonus materials, tips and techniques to take away with you

What will the course cover?

By the end of the training you will:

- Have analysed your own leadership style, and know how to adapt it in different circumstances
- Be able to identify and respond appropriately to the management needs of your staff
- Have developed skills and techniques to be able to manage effectively
- Have developed in-depth insight into the application of leadership competencies to your own role
- Have accessed your own natural leadership attributes including courage, inspiration and advocacy and have applied them in practice

Who should attend?

This course is aimed at both experienced managers and those new to the role. You may have some experience of leadership, but may have had little or no formal training in leadership skills.

Due to the unique personalised nature of the course, participants should be committed to attending all 6 modules, and to making real lasting changes as the programme evolves, and after it is completed.

“It was fun, well thought through and well-presented. I learnt quite a few insights on leadership.”

Ian Gilmour – The Church of Scotland

“Delivery and subject matter was superb – provided much food for thought. Excellent tools for everyday use.”

Adrian Axtell – Regional Secretary
Unite the Union

“Really good for managers looking to build their team.”

Lisa McEwan – Abbey Business Centres

Course duration: 2 days, or 2 one-day workshops, with 2-4 weeks between them, during which new skills can be applied, and participants can reflect on their learning.
